First Call for Papers

The Department of General Linguistics at the Faculty of Philology, University of Belgrade, Serbia is pleased to announce its international conference on Linguistics. For us, 2021 is an important year; it is with great pride that we will be marking our anniversary – 30 years from the founding of our Department of General Linguistics in Belgrade. BeLiDa 2021 aims to mark this important event by bringing together researchers, scientists and students to exchange and share their experiences, new ideas, and research results about all aspects of Language.

We invite submissions of abstracts for presentations of previously unpublished research in all areas of theoretical linguistics, including, but not limited to:

- phonetics
- phonology
- morphology
- syntax
- semantics
- pragmatics

- historical linguistics
- sociolinguistics
- language acquisition
- psycholinguistics
- neurolinguistics
- computational linguistics
- discourse analysis

As the covid-19 situation is still unpredictable, it is acceptable for those participants who can not attend the conference because of the travel restrictions to present their papers online. The organizing committee will monitor the situation and the conference may be switched to virtual mode if necessary.

The official language of the conference is English.

Each paper will be allotted 20 minutes (15 minutes for presentation and 5 minutes for discussion).

A selection of papers will be published after the conference. Further details on the type and profile of publications will be announced in the Second Call for Papers.
